New York Stock Letters.

James A. Pollock & Co., bankers and brokers, 6 West Second South street, received the following stock market letters from their New York correspondents over their private wire yesterday afternoon:
Logan & Bryan say: "The market closed practically on the bottom. Up to within the last half hour stocks showed quite a little strength, in most cases ruling at about or slightly above yesterday's closing figures. We don't see how pricos can hold at this time, and believe advantage should be taken on bulges such as we saw today, to sell stocks."

Dick Bros. say: "The market was quite strong again this morning, railying sharply under the leadership of Union Pacific, Reading, B. R. T., Amaigamated and the steels. Most of the buying, however, was short covering and in the afternoon stocks began to come out again. Under this renewed pressure the market sagged and finally broke sharply in the last hour. The closing was quite weak, with prices about at their lowest.

SHARP RALLY NOTED IN CHICAGO WHEAT

Market Weakens Later on Heavy Selling by the Local Holders.

CHICAGO, April 25.—The wheat market opened a trifle easier, influenced by continued favorable weather for seeding in the Northwest. Numerous damage reports from Kanasa and Nebraska caused a sharp raily. An active demand by cash interests for the May delivery increased the general strength. Later the market weakened on selling by local holders and the greater part of the day was lost. The market closed about steady. July opened a shade to 1461/4c lower at 791/4c to 791/4c. Close, 791/4/2 lower at 791/4c. advanced to 791/4/2 lower at 791/4c. In the market seed as a lower at 791/4c. In the market lower at 791/4c. In t

Lincoln Was a Humorist.

Lincoln Was a Humorist.

Humor is the other American characteristic which Mr. Bryce fixes upon, and it was one of Lincoln's marked traits. He is the most humorous figure in our history. None of our great political men before him, with the possible exception of Franklin, have been remarkable for this quality. It is not a quality you expect to find in a statesman, although some of the very great men, like Cromwell and Frederick, have had it. Humor, certainly of the kind his was, is not favorable to greatness in action. In many cases it affects the strength of will of men. It is vory apt to weaken ambilion in men. On the other hand, the want of it often seems to increase their force and efficiency. It was so in the case of Sumner, no doubt. Any one must have noticed, for instance, that sentimental people are apt to have strong wills. The fact that Lincoln's possession of this quality in no way affected the serious strength of his character or his vigor as a man of action is an indication of his greatness.

A humorist he certainly was. Upon the question of just how good he was in that way men will differ. Our national pride might lead us to wish to put him as a great humorous hero by the side of Swift. I doubt whether we can do that on the strength of such well-authenticated specimens of his humor as are recorded. They are good no doubt, but scarcely so good as those ancient favorites. "Dearly Beloved Roger" or the story of the "Meditation on a Broomstick." Regarding the most widely quoted of the sermy, which Mr. Brooks claims for him an old friend of mine, the late Moses F. Odell, once asked Lincoln if this joke was his. "No," he said, "that is loo good for me." It is what I should have expected. The best things are usually annonymous. This particular joke dates from much before Lincoln's day—E. S. Nadal in Scribner's
